By Uzi and Sjaelin

Shooting Star Wildflower

Shooting star wildflowers grow in eastern North America in moist woodlands, prairies, and rocky slopes, and in western North America in mountain meadows and along streams. Why did I choose this flower well ...

Shooting star wildflowers are important for their role in pollination, particularly for bumblebees, and for contributing to the biodiversity of their ecosystems. They are a key food source for early-season pollinators like queen bumblebees, which use a unique buzz pollination method to collect pollen from the flowers. The plant's native status and unique flowering habits also make it a valuable addition to native plant gardens and naturalistic landscapes.

by Ember

Cornflower

The Cyanus flower is another name for the common cornflower, also known as bachelor's button (Centaurea cyanus). It is an annual plant native to Europe, known for its blue flowers that are popular in gardens, meadows, and as a food source for pollinators.

Characteristics

Appearance: The flowers are typically blue, though they can also be pink, white, or purple. They have a unique structure with a central disk of florets surrounded by ray florets.

Size: The plant grows to be about 1 to 3 feet tall.

Growing conditions: It thrives in full sun to light shade and tolerates poor soils, making it a low-maintenance plant.

Blooming season: It blooms from late spring into summer and can continue into early fall.

All About the White Lined Sphinx Moth!

Raylene

What is the White-Lined Sphinx Moth?

The white-lined sphinx moth is a nocturnal pollinator that is very interesting! For all of you pollinator lovers, we decided to do all of the research for you!

White lined sphinx moth —->

What is their Diet like?

The white lined sphinx moth has two different diets. Their diets change when they become an adult!

Diet (caterpillar): Tomatoes, tobacco, grapes, apples, willowherb, evening primroses, lilac.

(white lined sphinx moth feed on a bunch of plants)

Diet (adult): honeysuckle, morning glory, penstemon, columbine, lilac, petunia.

(adult white line sphinx moths are nectar feeders. They like a bunch of flowers including that)

Where do they like to hang out?

White lined sphinx moths can be found in America. Southern Oregon can also be found in woodlands,fields,gardens,suburbs. And throughout North America.

What time of day and year are they active?

White lined sphinx moths are nocturnal. and you can usually see them during sunset. They are active through spring and fall.

What flowers are they attracted to?

White-lined sphinx moths will forage on a wide variety of flowers. Their long tongues make them well-adapted to sip nectar from long-necked flowers, and they are common visitors of night-blooming flowers.

Morning glory, Blazing star Sages

Columbine, Coral honeysuckle

Wild plumbago, Thistle

Why are we talking about this pollinator?

They are vital pollinators, especially for tubular plants. And they serve as a food source for other animals.

In 1775, the white lined sphinx moth got its name. :)

WOW WORK!

Interview with D' haem And Nasser

Cillians

Poster

Cillian gave consent to put this picture on this slide.

Interview with D' haem:

We asked him what students are doing well in his classes and he said that Dani and Azalea are doing amazing in his culinary class!

Good job Dani and Azalea!

Interview with Nasser

Hazel is someone who produces wow work in his PBL math class same with Anna, V, and Elliot.

In his class they are using tinkercad to make 3d models of their raised garden bed benches and figure out the price of them!

Great job to Hazel, Anna, V, And Elliot Keep on doing great!

PBL Progress Report on D’haem’s PBL classes

By;Jordyn,Gracie,Alayna,Rose

D’haem

Made in D’haem’s class by Jordyn faye Grijalva H

Our article is about progress in D´haems OPL class. We interviewed D´haem during block 3 on 11/14 in his classroom.

In PBL Mr. D’haem’s class is working on graphic design posters for the farmers market and renaissance fair. You can make it on canva or you can draw it.
